P4H and P4HC+ Highlights

P4H Network Web platform overhaul: much more than just a website

Author: Gwen Dhaene

P4H Web portal, 2017

Caption: showcasing the commitment to excellence of its members: good practices from Cambodia even more easily accessible

Description:

“The complete overhaul of the P4H Network web portal is one of the most prominent project of 2016. Thanks to the technical and financial support of the German Co-operation Agency (GIZ) P4H will be able to secure an integrated, high-performance web portal which ergonomically attracts users, help disseminate knowledge, enhances co-operation, support reporting from the perspective of its network and its coordination desk in charge of the web portal overall management”. P4H Coordination Desk- visit to Indonesia 6-10 March 2017

Author: Michael Adelhardt

Providing for Health- P4H, 2017

Description:

Cambodia was used as an example of an approach to reintroduce P4H at Indonesia on request of USAID. The Indonesian version will be termed P4H IND+ and a L4UHC programme, tailored to the country’s needs and sociopolitical situation, will be developed and implemented. Kindly notice the new logo of P4H on the slides as well.

Factors driving changes in the design, implementation and scaling-up of the contracting of health services in rural Cambodia, 1997–2015

Author: Keovathanak Khim, Por Ir and Peter Leslie Annear

Health Systems and Reform, 2017

Description:

“Based on a review of published and grey literature and interviews with 29 local and international key informants, the study identifies national ownership, financial sustainability and the need to strengthen service delivery institutions as the major forces that have shaped contracting in Cambodia, culminating in the move to ‘internal contracting’ arrangements for public health care delivery. There remains a need to strengthen contracting governance arrangements”.

The unfinished health agenda: Neonatal mortality in Cambodia

Author: Rathmony Hong, Pauline Yongeun Ahn, Frank Wieringa, Tung Rathavy, Ludovic Gauthier, Rathavuth Hong, Arnaud Laillou, Judit Van Geystelen, Jacques Berger, Etienne Poirot

PLoS ONE Journal, 2017

Description:

“This study aims to highlight findings from the field so to provide evidence for future programming and policy efforts. It will be argued that to foster further advances in health, Cambodia will need to keep neonatal survival and health high on the agenda and tackle exacerbating inequities that arise from a pluralistic health system with considerable regional differences and socio-economic disparities”.
